

COHORT COACHING FOR HIGH POTENTIALS

Cohort Coaching provides high potentials the opportunity to expand their leadership skills in a year-long shared learning experience. It is not intended for people who have leadership problems. Cohort Coaching is for good leaders who yearn to be great ones.

Cohorts are comprised of six to nine individuals from a single organization who make the commitment to meet as a group once a month over the course of a year. Facilitated by a leadership coach, the monthly sessions revolve around leadership topics identified as having the highest future value for both the individual and the organization. In the process, participants are exposed to a set of universal principles of high performance leadership and are expected to bring their leadership challenges to the table. These “cases” or situations provide the context for members to explore ways of strengthening their leadership effectiveness in “real-time” situations. The year-long experience allows participants to learn to embody their unique expression of the principles presented over the course of time.

Through deep exploration, inquiry and dialogue, the cohort and coach help participants identify their natural leadership styles and deepen their leadership capability. In addition to the monthly meetings, participants receive a monthly one-on-one executive coaching session to deepen their experience and pursue their own individual development plans.

UNIQUE STRENGTHS OF COHORT COACHING

- Being part of a cohort group adds a powerful layer of accountability and enhances participants’ learning and level of commitment.
- Compared to 1:1 coaching where the coach only has the opportunity for dialogue with the coachee, the cohort experience provides the coach an opportunity to directly observe the coachee’s interaction and behavior within the group.
- When a coachable moment occurs in the group sessions, the coach (and fellow cohort members) can deliver real time intervention and this strengthens the effectiveness of the learning.
- The cohort provides for collective learning which helps to grow the organization more than working with a single individual.
